Ako Aotearoa launches Tuia Te Ako Hui Ipurangi – a series of five online sessions to replace our regular national Māori tertiary hui

Responding to the challenges we all currently face, our new format hui will connect, and reconnect, people around key issues for Māori in tertiary education, through an online series of webinars. Starting in November 2020, the series features five interactive sessions with leading Māori in tertiary teaching and learning.

Theme – Tuia Te Tiriti: Weaving Te Tiriti into Tertiary Education

The theme for our new online series marks 180 years since the signing of Te Tiriti o Waitangi, the founding document of our nation. By connecting tertiary education and Te Tiriti o Waitangi we can learn from the past, share current good practices, and plan for a Tiriti-led future.

Our Tuia Te Ako Hui Ipurangi series welcomes everyone

Guided by our series of our face-to-face Tuia Te Ako Hui (since 2010), these online webinars provide a great opportunity for Māori to come together (albeit virtually) to debate current topical issues, and celebrate success and successful strategies in tertiary education that are by Māori for Māori, and by Māori for everyone.

The webinars also offer excellent professional learning opportunities for non-Māori wanting to gain greater insight into the key issues for Māori, from Māori perspectives that are supportive towards cultural capability building.

We welcome anyone interested in supporting tertiary Māori teaching and learning success to join us for these topical 1.5 hour online interactive sessions. Whether you are based in workplace learning or a tertiary education organisation, you will find the presentations insightful and empowering.
